

Fireworks/Firework Disposal

Humberside Fire and Rescue Service do not condone the use of fireworks at home. We actively encourage the public to attend an organised bonfire or firework display.

Humberside Fire and Rescue Service does not have any involvement or hold any responsibility for the disposal of, damaged, unwanted or unused fireworks.

Humberside Fire and Rescue Service are committed to making the local community safer utilising the skills, knowledge, information and experience of its employees and relevant partner organisations.

Most injuries throughout the bonfire period occur as a result of people building their own bonfires and setting off their own fireworks.

Humberside Fire and Rescue Service will:

- Educate people around the dangers of fireworks.
- Ensure safety standards and licences are adhered to at organised events and offer advice and help to venues.
- Work with local councils to enforce where occupiers are breaching the Environmental Protection Act.
- Proactively work with the police and other partners around the bonfire period to try to reduce callouts, serious incidents and arson.
- Work with partners such as the Police and Trading Standards to ensure only fireworks that meet the correct standards are available to buy.
